

On the Subject of Not The Curious Light

How do you know this isn't the wrong light?

See Appendix: The Light of The Light for help identifying the various versions of The Light.

In this module, you are presented with a set of four "wires", each displaying three of six "conditions", and need to "cut" some of them. If your module doesn't display three lights, among Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and Black, every time you tap it, you're looking at a different module.

First, you'll need to figure out which exact three "conditions" are actually being displayed on each "wire".

If the last digit of the serial number is even, or the bomb has more lit than unlit indicators, the first condition is Sea Level. Otherwise, if the bomb has at least one D battery, the second condition is Lunar Phase. Otherwise, the third condition is Sawdust Percent.	If the bomb has a Stereo RCA port, an RJ-45 port, or a PS/2 port, the first unused condition is Zodiac Sign. Otherwise, the second unused condition is Baking Time.	The final unused condition is Light Color.

Then, consult the below table to find the "value" for each "condition" on each "wire".

	Cyan	Magenta	Yellow	Black
Sea Level	+40cm	-20cm	-40cm	+20cm
Lunar Phase	Waxing	Waning	Full	New
Sawdust Percent	2%	5%	20%	50%
Zodiac Sign	Fish	Rabbit	Goat	Cat
Baking Time	10 min	20 min	40 min	60 min
Light Color	Cyan	Magenta	Yellow	Black

Finally, for each "wire", follow the below instructions, using a long-press after seeing a "wire"'s colors to "cut" it.

Cut the wire if any two values are exactly 20 (positive).
Cut the wire if it's a member of the Chinese Zodiac or was Overcooked, unless it was Dry or Inedible anyways.
Cut the wire if the tide is high, unless the light color contains Red.
Cut the wire if the light color contains Blue, unless the zodiac sign is Aquatic or it's a New Moon.
